MAN SACRIFICE WILL NOT BE MADE BY U. S. TO GAIN OBJECTIVES

Slow But Sure is the Motto Of Our Military Heads in Planning Big Assault on German Stronghold

SAMMIES RECONCILED TO PROGRAM NOW

By Ed. L. Keen
(General European Manager, United Press.)

With The American Army In France Oct. 26.—(By Mail.)—Sammy is still straining at the leash. But he is beginning to understand why he hasn't yet been turned loose against the Hun. So are our good friends the French.

At first there was much disappointment, on the part of both the American soldiers and the French people, that our first contingents were not hurried along to the firing line as soon as they had comfortably shed their sea-legs.

Said Jacques: "Monsieur, you are mos' welcome; but you were much time coming. We have been fighting ver' hard three years. Perhaps, is it not so, now you—what you call—hustle some, to make the lost time?"

Answered Sammy: "Surest thing you know, Frenchy. You can't make it too soon for us. Only let us at 'em, and we'll show 'em quick enough what they're up against."

Both have been disillusioned. The Sammies sensed it first. It didn't take them very long to learn that they were densely ignorant of this new style European fighting game. When the French Chasseurs and the British noncoms from Aldershot started to instruct them in the up-to-date tricks of the war trade, even the veteran doughboy began to suspect that he was only raw material after all.

And so, Sammy buckled down to hard work. Although he still grouses he appreciates now the reason for it all.

And the French people, too, are today viewing the situation in its larger aspects. As they have watched the comparatively small first contingents of the American army evolve with remarkable rapidity into modern fighting form, they have become impressed with the idea that perhaps after all it would be better for these men to be used as the leaven of the great force steadily assembling on French soil than to employ them on the front at once. Also, that America can perform greater service for France by sending to the front, when all is ready, a big, complete, fully-trained, adequately equipped, self-contained, self-reliant fighting unit, than to dissipate her strength and imperil her efforts by utilizing here and there smaller and less effective organizations.

The French know that the Germans will know the minute American troops reach the front, and that the meeting will be anything but a frolic for our boys. A single division, or even an army corps, might conceivably be cut to pieces if the Germans should determinedly concentrate against it, and then—we would have to start all over again.

Hence, both Sammy and Jacques have been curbing their impatience. So far as the "higher commands" are concerned—American, British, French and Italian—a thorough understanding exists. One may not say when, where or how America's first real blow will fall; but it is permissable to predict that it will not happen until we are so thoroughly prepared as to insure the most effective work possible for the Allies' and America's cause.

Meantime the pioneer American soldier in France is becoming a better soldier every day. Potentially he was a mighty fine soldier when he first landed—even the rookie. You folks who knew him at home would scarcely recognize him now, such has been the miracle wrought by the combination of British and French methods of intensive training—with Pershing improvements.

I saw him in London, maching past Buckingham Palace, letting King George and his faithful subjects give him the once-over. Of sturdy framework but sallow skin and flabby muscles; much heftier than Tommy, but with slouching shoulders; sloping his rifle according to his individual fancy; couldn't keep step even when the King was looking—especially to the bagpipe music, which perhaps shouldn't be charged up against him.

Today he is the best looking soldier in Europe—erect, well tanned, and splendidly muscled. If he doesn't prove to be the best in all respects it won't be for lack of self-assurance. That is a big asset in this war, but it has its possible dangers. Just as Tommy and Poilu had to learn respect for Fritz's ability as a soldier—although despizing his methods—so Sammy will have to learn it, by experience.

But proud as you would be to see how Sammy has progressed in the profession of arms, you would be prouder still to know how exemplary has been his conduct. He had the admiration of the French people fom the start. Now he has their love and confidence. With very rare exceptions—which by reason of the severity of the punishment inflicted are not likely to be repeated—his behavior toward his hosts has been exactly what you expected it would be.

Even a few days' visit in these American camps—if it were possible to tell you just where they are located—would see how nicely we have responded to ench sentiment and tradition while at the same time securing a site most suitable to our training requirements — furnishes sufficient proof that your trust has been worthily placed.

From now on it is up to you—to see that the spirit back of the lines is maintained at as high a pitch as that of the men who are to do your fighting.

DE SAULLES CASE GOES TO JURY BY TONIGNT

State Closes Case With Thier Alieniests Declaring Woman is Responsible For Act

MRS. DE SAULLES CONFIDENT

By Hugh Baillie

Mineola, Dec. 1.—Both state and defense rested in the trial of Mrs. iBanca De Saulles shortly before noon today, and the fate of the Chilean beauty who killed her American hus band will be in the hands of the jury tonight.

Alienists for the state appearing as last witnesses declared that Mrs. De Saulles was responsible when she shot and killed John L. De Saulless when he refused to give her their five year old son. Their statement was in direct contradiction to the finding of experts for the defense. They declared Mrs. De Saulles knew the nature of the act and knew it was wrong. Court adjourned until one o'clock. The arguments were made this afternoon. The charge of Justice Manning to the jury is expected to take forty-five minutes. The case will probably be in the hands of the jury by five o'clock. Mrs. De Saulles smiled faintly as the state closed its side of the case and as Jutice Manning said the case would be in the hands of the jury this evening she turned and smiled at the men who will render the verdict.

HELP Y. W. C. A. FUND

The Women of Clearfield County Are to Raise $5,000—Your Assistance Required

The women at home want to do for the women at the front and at the cantonments just what the Y. M. C. A. fund is to do for the men at the front, and in order to accomplsh this task, the Y. W. C. A. of the country has taken up the work of raising a fund approximating four million dollars, of which amount nearly one million has been secured.

Clearfield county's share of the fund is $5000 and the local committee, headed by Mrs. Singleton Bell, has about perfected plans to proceed with the work of raising that amount, and the first thing to be given for the benefit of this fund will be a tea to be held in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church on next Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

This money will be used by the Y. W. C. A. in erecting what are termed Hostess Houses. These houses serve as the meeting place for the families and friends of the soldiers who are waiting to take their place on the battlefield at the front in France. About thirty of such places have already been constructed at the military camps and cantonments and they have proven of inestimable value.

The ladies having the matter in hand know the cause to be a most worthy one, and they ask the assistance of every person in the town and county to do their share towards furnishing this county's share of the money.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS WITH THE BEST WEATHER

Only Two Killings Reported But No Doubt Many More of the Camps Have Scored Hits

P. T. DAVIS GETS FINE BUCK

The glorious hunting season opened this morning in Clearfield County with not very encouraging weather. There was considerable despondency among the hunters last evening when all indications pointed to warm weather for the opening days of the season but as the day grows longer the snow occasionally flies and weather conditions give promise of being ideal for the pursuit and slaying of the fleet-footed deer and the tracking of the heavy furred black bear.

Every camp on the mountains is full again as usual notwithstanding the inroads of the military service. Many are of the opinion that the camps are more likely to be depleted two or three years hence than now because the boys who are now in the military camps may perhaps get enough out of door life that they will not be so keen about the camp life in the wilds of Clearfield County as they were heretofore. However, this is pure speculation and there is no telling what enthusiasm over hunting there will be in future years.

P. T. DAVIS GETS BUCK

About eight o'clock this morning the Crystal Springs Camp reported a fine three prong buck killed by P. T. Davis, Treasurer of the Clearfield Trust Company, and to Mr. Davis will no doubt belong the honor of getting the first buck of the season in this County. If any one has a prior claim to the honor he will be expected to make his claim within five days and support it with no less than three affadavits. In addition he may have to go to the mat with Mr. Davis. We have not talked to him but we appreciate how keen a fellow is about defending his laurels as a hunter.

FEW KILLINGS REPORTED

It has been exceptionally hard to get reports from the various camps today. Many of those having telephone connectionss do not answer, evidently all of them being out in the woods. From the Mose Yeagey camp we learn that Seth Maines of Woodland brought one down this morning but at that camp no report has been heard from the majority of crews out on the mountains.

New Blood Put Pep Into The Bowlers

Watson of Progress Team Does Fine After Getting Warmed Up

The Prof. Men won from The Progress in last night's game. Watson, the Progress' new bowler, tried to set an example for the rest of the bowlers and he succeeded very well in his undertaking. This same Watson was high man of the evening with a total of 537 pins for an average of 179, which is very good for a beginner. Mecklem was second with 494, and an average of 165. Yeancy tried to lower his average and he succeeded very well in his attempt, lowering it from 167 to 162. His average for the evening was 136. (Some average, Doc.) The Prof. Men also put a new man in the field, in the form of a man named Wade Stewart. The new man bowled for an average of 143.

Germans Advance Two Miles On Haig Line But Tanks Repulsed

Annihilation of Enemy Impossible---Gerard

Former Ambassador to Germany Makes Statement of War Aims

New York, Dec. 1.—James W. Girard, former American Ambassador to Germany, agrees with that part of the Marquis of Lansdowne's statement that Germany cannot be annihilated. He so declared here today. He did assert, however, that "we must let Germany know that wars for conquest are forever ended, and that the wanton cruelty like that perpretrated on Belgium and like that of the murder of the Lusitania must not occurr again. The Kaiser said he would not stand any nonsense from America after this war is over. We want to be so that after this war is over we shall not have to stand any nonsense from the Kaiser. Germany cannot be wiped out as a nation except at the cost of blood and treasure that will stagger the world in the cost of manpower and money, and when the Germans themselves understand that they are defeated. We cannot let them end the war leaving Germany with increased territory and with therefore increased man-power in the possession of a government which has threatened us with invasion and which has murdered our citizens."

SATURDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 1, 1917.

Hon. Peter Gearhart, of Clearfield, a member of the District Exemption Board for the Second District of Pennsylvania, was in Clearfield on Wednesday, enroute to his home, the district board having adjourned on Tuesday evening until the 15th of December, at which time the local boards start to send out the questionnaires. The board has practically closed up its work in connection with the first draft and has the slate clean for the next draft, which will probably come early in the new year.

Mr. Gearhart stated that there was approximtaley 160,000 registrants in the district, of which 87,000 have been called and took the physical examination. Out of this last number over 10,000 soldiers have been selected for the United States National army.

The district board passed up 2503 claims for exemption. Of this number 751 were industrial claims and 532 agricultural, the remaining being mostly dependency claims. A total of 236 claims were refused on industria grounds, 1% refused on agricultural grounds. On industrial grounds the board allowed a total of 515 claims and on agricultural grounds 246.

In this district 32 appeals from the decision of the federal board have been taken to the president on industrial grounds and 37 on agricultural grounds.

There was before the board 1151 appeals for dependency that were originally refused by the local boards. Of this number 760 were disallowed and in 391 cases the federal board reversed the decision of the local boards.

In Erie the three local boards find that the average cost of selecting and mobilizing men for the national army is $5.50 per man.

There is practically nothing doing with the local board. They are marking time until the full number of questionniaires are received. Just as soon as these come in the board will at once get ready for mailing them out. The mailing of these forms starts on December 15 and will continue each day until the entire number of registered men who are not now in actual service has received a copy. It is probable that a copy will also go to each man of the last contingent, as it is not likely that they will be called into service previous to the mailing out of the questionnaires.

MORE FIRE-EATING

Complaint that has been heard against the generous treatment of German prisoners of the United States government is ill-timed as well as ill-advised, inasmuch as there are Americans in the prison camps of Germany. We shall make no progress in whipping Germany by mistreating German prisoners in America. Moreover, we are operating under a treaty with Prussia regarding prisoners of war negotiated by Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson in 1775, renewed by John Quincy Adams in 1779 and reaffirmed by Henry Clay in 1829, in which there is an express provision that a state of war shall not be made a pretext for suspending the agreement. This treaty declares that each power shall place its war prisoners in wholesome situations, not in dungeons, prisons or prison ships; that they shall not be put in irons; that they shall have room to exercise in the open air, and that they shall be allowed as good food as the rations commonly served to the men of corresponding rank in the army of their captors. That German chefs are good cooks is well known; hence it is not a matter of surprise that from the store of provisions provided them they are able to prepare appetizing menus which convey the idea of luxury to Americans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson 9.—Fourth Quarter, for December 2, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Neh. 4:7-21—Memory Verses, 17, 18—Golden Text Heb. 13:6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is sometimes helpful to glance at the end of a story and consider the successful issue, especially when there are many difficulties to be met along the way. In these days to which we have come and always it is well to live on such words as these: "The kingdom shall be the Lord's," "He shall see of the travail His soul and shall be satisfied" (Obad. 21; Ps. 22:27, 28; Rev. 11:15; Isa. 53:11). It will help us in the lesson of today to keep before us chapter 6:15, 16. "So the wall was finished: . . . they perceived that this work was wrought of our God." Had those who wrought been all skilled workmen they might have given the credit to them, but when the wall was built by merchants and goldsmiths and apothecaries and women they had to look to some power beyond the visible. If we have special talent along any line of service we may get the credit of doing it, but if we are just ordinary folks and God sees fit to accomplish something through us that we seem to be wholly unfitted for, then the glory shall be all his, and that is the way it should always be.

Before we consider the enemies and their confusion let us look at the workers with God and learn from them how to do, for believers are all builders as well as a building (I Cor. 3:9, 10). We must have a mind to work (verse 6) like David, who prepared with all his might because he had set his affection upon the house of his God (I Chron. 29:2, 3). The zeal of these workers is seen in the fact that they were armed while they wrought, they were warriors as well as workers, and they cared little for their own comfort if only they could accomplish their tasks, every one his work (15, 17, 23). Their zeal reminds us of our Lord, of whom it is written, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up" (Ps. 69:9; John 2:17). Being separated far from each other on the wall, they listened as they wrought for the sound of the trumpet which would summon them to Nehemiah, for the trumpeter was by him (vv. 18-20).

Our daily life is conflict as well as service, according to Eph. 6, and we should ever be listening for the sound of the trumpet which shall call us to meet in the air him whose we are and whom we serve (I Thess. 4:16-18). The work is the Lord's, and the battle is his also, and he will work in us both to win and to do and fight for us (v. 20; Phil. 2:13; Ex. 14:14; Josh. 23:10). We have only to dwell with him for his work, and remember his words: "I will work, and who shall hinder it?" "Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed" (I Chron. 4:23; Isa. 43:13; Jer. 51:29). The enemies were very angry and mocked the Jews and conspired to hinder the work (chapter 4:1, 7, 8), but Nehemiah talked with God about it, saying, "Hear, Oh our God, for we are despised!" So they prayed unto God and set a watch against the enemy day and night (vv. 4, 9).

We must expect to be reproached and despised, but we must just tell him as Nehemiah did and remember his own word to us to watch and pray and attend each one to his work while we wait for his call (Mark 13:32-37). The enemy did all in their power to hinder the work and to make the people afraid, but God brought their counsel to naught, reminding us of these words: "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught. He maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations" (v. 15; Ps. 33: 10, 11). The remedy for all fear is to remember the Lord, as Nehemiah told them in verse 14 and as Isaiah said in chapters 41:12, 13; 51:12, 13: "They that war against thee shall be as nothing and as a thing of naught. . . . Who art thou that thou shouldest be afraid of a man . . . and forgettest the Lord thy Maker?"

The worst troubles are not always from outsiders, but often from within the church or the business or the home, and Nehemiah had troubles also from within, for the men of Judah complained of the much rubbish and little strength for the work and said that they were not able to build the wall. They seem to have belonged to the same sort of people as the nobles who put not their necks to the work of the Lord (vv. 10 and 3:5). Then there were those keen men of business who, like some today, made a corner in corn and compelled people to mortgage their lands and houses in order to buy food (vv. 1-6). Nehemiah spoke severely to them and made them cease their oppression, and, while he as their governor should have been cared for by them, he would not accept anything from them, but cared for 150 Jews and rulers at his own table, besides many from outside (vv. 6-19). Chapter 6 tells how his enemies by trickery and deceit and lying tried to do him harm, but the Lord delivered him from them all, giving them into his hand, and he was content to deal with them as they deserved. It is truly a costly thing to stand out for God in this present evil world.

A magnificent memorial to the women of the Confederacy is to be unveiled this month at Jackson, Miss.

FRENCH CORSET IS STRAIGHT

Corselet Effect Is Dominating Feature of Majority of Frocks—High Collars, Skimpy Skirts Popular.

Paris has accentuated the endeavor to make the human figure look like a lead pencil. The French corsets of this season are built as straight as a medieval cuirass, says a fashion writer in the New York Times.

The corselet effect, in truth, is the dominating feature of the majority of frocks. The First Empire waistline is brought in by many of the designers in order to accentuate the lack of a waist. Even the jackets for street suits drop in straight lines from the shoulders to the hips, unless they carry out the surplice effect.

The extraordinary wide girdles of this season accentuate the Egyptian figure.

It is difficult to know exactly what France has decided upon in the way of a proper neckline. On street suits the collars rise so high that they are called the "cache-nez," or nose coverings. There is the new trench muffler, an apache cravat, and a postillion collar of the eighteenth century for the street; and for the house there are gowns that are buttoned to the chin, with the material "going over the top." Others have the loose handkerchief drapery, the fifteenth century Italian collar, and the conventional high, rolling collar that shows a bit of neck below the chin.

A very few of the new skirts sweep the instep. The rest are frankly short. Street suits have skirts that appear to be simply two breadths of material cut off at the hem to allow the fullest display of the highest boot made.

There is a strong feeling abroad for the elongated skirt in evening gowns and women are insisting that they almost touch the toes in front. They are so narrow that they are easily wrinkled up over the ankles as the wearer moves.

The American league club owners will have a hard problem when they meet in annual session in Chicago this month to decide on a definite policy for the coming season. In all probability a large majority of the big league players will be in the service before spring training time.

Do Not Speead False Information Again

Call a Newspaper Office And Get Confirmation On Reported Deaths

The pernicious tale bearer is at work again. It must indeed be a pleasant thing to tell somebody that a soldier by the name of Jones has been killed and then infer that it is Jones from your own town Days and nights of worry and distress follow for those who have plenty to be concerned about under ordinary circumstances.

Every citizen may depend upon the word of the War and Navy Department that we will be given news of all casualities as quickly as such news can be rushed through from the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Force.

News of casualties can be reeceived in this country through no other channel than the War and Navy Department and they in turn immediately give it to the press associations. Citizens can depend on the daily papers for authentic news in this direction, and furthermore they can rely upon the fact that if the papers do not know anything about it there has been no casualties.

Yesterday General Pershing reported five deaths among his thousands of men. None of them, however, were Pennsylvanians. Both daily papers of Clearfield now have press association connections and we would urge that no more rumors of deaths among soldiers in France be allowed to spread unless one of the dailies confirms the reports.

Saving the Teeth of Nation's Future Defenders

Many Exemption Boards in Making Up National Army Have Wished School Nurses and Doctors Had Existed 20 Years Ago.

"Good morning! Have you brushed your teeth?"

This salutation is becoming familiar to school children in all parts of the country. In schools where the body is being educated in connection with the mind the child's teeth are considered of first importance.

While the teacher sees that her pupil advances intellectually, the school nurse sees that it develops physically. Her query on entering the classroom is not "Have you studied your lessons?" but "Have you brushed your teeth?"

Medical inspectors have discovered that vast armies of germs inhabit the mouths of school children. They have found that many of the ills which affect the child mentally and retard it in its studies may be traced to defective teeth. Therefore the campaign for clean teeth and teeth that are properly preserved by filling.

"Save the six-year molars and there will be little trouble afterward." This is the slogan of the dentists.

School nurses, therefore, are trying to preserve the molars. In schools where the nurse is in constant attendance the mouth of every child is given frequent examination.

The youngsters pass in review before the nurse with their mouths wide open. If she finds a cavity she makes out a memorandum and later takes the child to a dentist.

Toothbrush drills are part of the curriculum of many of the big city schools. Prizes are offered for those who can vouch for their ownership of toothbrushes and who can prove by the condition of their mouth that they use them. The nurse does everything in her power to persuade the children to spend a few of their pennies on tooth powder.

In one of the big New York schools nurses have combined with dentists to fight pyorrhea, the disease which causes receding gums. In this school intensive work was done recently by oral hygienists of Columbia university, who gave every child's mouth a thorough examination and left it in a hygienic condition.

MAN SACRIFICE WILL NOT BE MADE BY U. S. TO GAIN OBJECTIVES

Slow But Sure is the Motto Of Our Military Heads in Planning Big Assault on German Stronghold

SAMMIES RECONCILED TO PROGRAM NOW

By Ed. L. Keen
(General European Manager, United Press.)

With The American Army In France Oct. 26.—(By Mail.)—Sammy is still straining at the leash. But he is beginning to understand why he hasn't yet been turned loose against the Hun. So are our good friends the French.

At first there was much disappointment, on the part of both the American soldiers and the French people, that our first contingents were not hurried along to the firing line as soon as they had comfortably shed their sea-legs.

Said Jacques: "Monsieur, you are mos' welcome; but you were much time coming. We have been fighting ver' hard three years. Perhaps, is it not so, now you—what you call—hustle some, to make the lost time?"

Answered Sammy: "Surest thing you know, Frenchy. You can't make it too soon for us. Only let us at 'em, and we'll show 'em quick enough what they're up against."

Both have been disillusioned. The Sammies sensed it first. It didn't take them very long to learn that they were densely ignorant of this new style European fighting game. When the French Chasseurs and the British noncoms from Aldershot started to instruct them in the up-to-date tricks of the war trade, even the veteran doughboy began to suspect that he was only raw material after all.

And so, Sammy buckled down to hard work. Although he still grouses he appreciates now the reason for it all.

And the French people, too, are today viewing the situation in its larger aspects. As they have watched the comparatively small first contingents of the American army evolve with remarkable rapidity into modern fighting form, they have become impressed with the idea that perhaps after all it would be better for these men to be used as the leaven of the great force steadily assembling on French soil than to employ them on the front at once. Also, that America can perform greater service for France by sending to the front, when all is ready, a big, complete, fully-trained, adequately equipped, self-contained, self-reliant fighting unit, than to dissipate her strength and imperil her efforts by utilizing here and there smaller and less effective organizations.

The French know that the Germans will know the minute American troops reach the front, and that the meeting will be anything but a frolic for our boys. A single division, or even an army corps, might conceivably be cut to pieces if the Germans should determinedly concentrate against it, and then—we would have to start all over again.

Hence, both Sammy and Jacques have been curbing their impatience. So far as the "higher commands" are concerned—American, British, French and Italian—a thorough understanding exists. One may not say when, where or how America's first real blow will fall; but it is permissable to predict that it will not happen until we are so thoroughly prepared as to insure the most effective work possible for the Allies' and America's cause.

Meantime the pioneer American soldier in France is becoming a better soldier every day. Potentially he was a mighty fine soldier when he first landed—even the rookie. You folks who knew him at home would scarcely recognize him now, such has been the miracle wrought by the combination of British and French methods of intensive training—with Pershing improvements.

I saw him in London, maching past Buckingham Palace, letting King George and his faithful subjects give him the once-over. Of sturdy framework but sallow skin and flabby muscles; much heftier than Tommy, but with slouching shoulders; sloping his rifle according to his individual fancy; couldn't keep step even when the King was looking—especially to the bagpipe music, which perhaps shouldn't be charged up against him.

Today he is the best looking soldier in Europe—erect, well tanned, and splendidly muscled. If he doesn't prove to be the best in all respects it won't be for lack of self-assurance. That is a big asset in this war, but it has its possible dangers. Just as Tommy and Poilu had to learn respect for Fritz's ability as a soldier—although despizing his methods—so Sammy will have to learn it, by experience.

But proud as you would be to see how Sammy has progressed in the profession of arms, you would be prouder still to know how exemplary has been his conduct. He had the admiration of the French people fom the start. Now he has their love and confidence. With very rare exceptions—which by reason of the severity of the punishment inflicted are not likely to be repeated—his behavior toward his hosts has been exactly what you expected it would be.

Even a few days' visit in these American camps—if it were possible to tell you just where they are located—you would see how nicely we have responded to ench sentiment and tradition while at the same time securing a site most suitable to our training requirements — furnishes sufficient proof that your trust has been worthily placed.

From now on it is up to you—to see that the spirit back of the lines is maintained at as high a pitch as that of the men who are to do your fighting.

DE SAULLES CASE GOES TO JURY BY TONIGNT

State Closes Case With Thier Alieniests Declaring Woman is Responsible For Act

MRS. DE SAULLES CONFIDENT

By Hugh Baillie

Mineola, Dec. 1.—Both state and defense rested in the trial of Mrs. iBanca De Saulles shortly before noon today, and the fate of the Chilean beauty who killed her American hus band will be in the hands of the jury tonight.

Alienists for the state appearing as last witnesses declared that Mrs. De Saulles was responsible when she shot and killed John L. De Saulless when he refused to give her their five year old son. Their statement was in direct contradiction to the finding of experts for the defense. They declared Mrs. De Saulles knew the nature of the act and knew it was wrong. Court adjourned until one o'clock. The arguments were made this afternoon. The charge of Justice Manning to the jury is expected to take forty-five minutes. The case will probably be in the hands of the jury by five o'clock. Mrs. De Saulles smiled faintly as the state closed its side of the case and as Jutice Manning said the case would be in the hands of the jury this evening she turned and smiled at the men who will render the verdict.

Harry Snyder, Former Resident Of Osceola Suddenly Expires

Stricken by heart failure while shaving a patron at the Travis Barber Shop on South Brady street at 1:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Harry Snyder, a well known barber, fell over and died despite the best efforts of physicians who were immediately on hand.

The death caused a sensation in the vicinity of the barber shop that spread to different parts of town where the deceased had been well known and highly respected.

The deceased was 62 years of age Thursday and had reside in DuBois a haf ozen years, coming here from Osceola, where he had lived practically all of the remainder of his life.

He had been subject to rheumatism for years but during the past few months had appeared to be in normal health. At noon he left his wife at their home on East Scribner avenue, happy and apparently well. He had arranged with her to meet him at 6 o'clock that evening to attend a supper.

Miss Alta Shirey returned home last evening from a visit with friends in Williamsport.

HELP Y. W. C. A. FUND

The Women of Clearfield County Are to Raise $5,000—Your Assistance Required

The women at home want to do for the women at the front and at the cantonments just what the Y. M. C. A. fund is to do for the men at the front, and in order to accomplsh this task, the Y. W. C. A. of the country has taken up the work of raising a fund approximating four million dollars, of which amount nearly one million has been secured.

Clearfield county's share of the fund is $5000 and the local committee, headed by Mrs. Singleton Bell, has about perfected plans to proceed with the work of raising that amount, and the first thing to be given for the benefit of this fund will be a tea to be held in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church on next Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

This money will be used by the Y. W. C. A. in erecting what are termed Hostess Houses. These houses serve as the meeting place for the families and friends of the soldiers who are waiting to take their place on the battlefield at the front in France. About thirty of such places have already been constructed at the military camps and cantonments and they have proven of inestimable value.

The ladies having the matter in hand know the cause to be a most worthy one, and they ask the assistance of every person in the town and county to do their share towards furnishing this county's share of the money.

Judge Hall has been confined to his bed for the past three months. Seven weeks ago he was brought to Philadelphia with the intention of placing him in a hospital, but his condition was so serious that it was impossible to move him. His wife, his sister, Miss Mary Hall and only brother and his niece Mrs. Vinton Leddel were at his bed side. Judge Hall was born in Karthaus, Clearfield County, October 7, 1861. In 1886 he married Miss Curran McMaira, of Madisonville.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS WITH THE BEST WEATHER

Only Two Killings Reported But No Doubt Many More of the Camps Have Scored Hits

P. T. DAVIS GETS FINE BUCK

The glorious hunting season opened this morning in Clearfield County with not very encouraging weather. There was considerable despondency among the hunters last evening when all indications pointed to warm weather for the opening days of the season but as the day grows longer the snow occasionally flies and weather conditions give promise of being ideal for the pursuit and slaying of the fleet-footed deer and the tracking of the heavy furred black bear.

Every camp on the mountains is full again as usual notwithstanding the inroads of the military service. Many are of the opinion that the camps are more likely to be depleted two or three years hence than now because the boys who are now in the military camps may perhaps get enough out of door life that they will not be so keen about the camp life in the wilds of Clearfield County as they were heretofore. However, this is pure speculation and there is no telling what enthusiasm over hunting there will be in future years.

About eight o'clock this morning the Crystal Springs Camp reported a fine three prong buck killed by P. T. Davis, Treasurer of the Clearfield Trust Company, and to Mr. Davis will no doubt belong the honor of getting the first buck of the season in this County. If any one has a prior claim to the honor he will be expected to make his claim within five days and support it with no less than three affadavits. In addition he may have to go to the mat with Mr. Davis. We have not talked to him but we appreciate how keen a fellow is about defending his laurels as a hunter.

FEW KILLINGS REPORTED

It has been exceptionally hard to get reports from the various camps today. Many of those having telephone connectionss do not answer, evidently all of them being out in the woods. From the Mose Yeagey camp we learn that Seth Maines of Woodland brought one down this morning but at that camp no report has been heard from the majority of crews out on the mountains.

New Blood Put Pep Into The Bowlers

Watson of Progress Team Does Fine After Getting Warmed Up

The Prof. Men won from The Progress in last night's game. Watson, the Progress' new bowler, tried to set an example for the rest of the bowlers and he succeeded very well in his undertaking. This same Watson was high man of the evening with a total of 537 pins for an average of 179, which is very good for a beginner. Mecklem was second with 494, and an average of 165. Yeancy tried to lower his average and he succeeded very well in his attempt, lowering it from 167 to 162. His average for the evening was 136. (Some average, Doc.) The Prof. Men also put a new man in the field, in the form of a man named Wade Stewart. The new man bowled for an average of 143.

The score:

Progress
Watson	149	195	193	537
A. Stewart	93	114	127	334

Germans Advance Two Miles On Haig Line But Tanks Repulsed

Annihilation of Enemy Impossible---Gerard

Former Ambassador to Germany Makes Statement of War Aims

New York, Dec. 1.—James W. Girard, former American Ambassador to Germany, agrees with that part of the Marquis of Lansdowne's statement that Germany cannot be annihilated. He so declared here today. He did assert, however, that "we must let Germany know that wars for conquest are forever ended, and that the wanton cruelty like that perpretrated on Belgium and like that of the murder of the Lusitania must not occurr again. The Kaiser said he would not stand any nonsense from America after this war is over. We want to be so that after this war is over we shall not have to stand any nonsense from the Kaiser. Germany cannot be wiped out as a nation except at the cost of blood and treasure that will stagger the world in the cost of manpower and money, and when the Germans themselves understand that they are defeated. We cannot let them end the war leaving Germany with increased territory and with therefore increased man-power in the possession of a government which has threatened us with invasion and which has murdered our citizens."

Hartswick, teacher of Class No. 4, and who has both sons in the service. Mr. Fred Weaver will receive the flag in behalf of the Church. SATURDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 1, 1917.

Hon. Peter Gearhart, of Clearfield, a member of the District Exemption Board for the Second District of Pennsylvania, was in Clearfield on Wednesday, enroute to his home, the district board having adjourned on Tuesday evening until the 15th of December, at which time the local boards start to send out the questionnaires. The board has practically closed up its work in connection with the first draft and has the slate clean for the next draft, which will probably come early in the new year.

Mr. Gearhart stated that there was approximtaley 160,000 registrants in the district, of which 87,000 have been called and took the physical examination. Out of this last number over 10,000 soldiers have been selected for the United States National army.

The district board passed up 2503 claims for exemption. Of this number 751 were industrial claims and 532 agricultural, the remaining being mostly dependency claims. A total of 236 claims were refused on industria grounds, 1% refused on agricultural grounds. On industrial grounds the board allowed a total of 515 claims and on agricultural grounds 246.

In this district 32 appeals from the decision of the federal board have been taken to the president on industrial grounds and 37 on agricultural grounds.

There was before the board 1151 appeals for dependency that were originally refused by the local boards. Of this number 760 were disallowed and in 391 cases the federal board reversed the decision of the local boards.

In Erie the three local boards find that the average cost of selecting and mobilizing men for the national army is $5.50 per man.

There is practically nothing doing with the local board. They are marking time until the full number of questionniaires are received. Just as soon as these come in the board will at once get ready for mailing them out. The mailing of these forms starts on December 15 and will continue each day until the entire number of registered men who are not now in actual service has received a copy. It is probable that a copy will also go to each man of the last contingent, as it is not likely that they will be called into service previous to the mailing out of the questionnaires.

MORE FIRE-EATING

Complaint that has been heard against the generous treatment of German prisoners of the United States government is ill-timed as well as ill-advised, inasmuch as there are Americans in the prison camps of Germany. We shall make no progress in whipping Germany by mistreating German prisoners in America. Moreover, we are operating under a treaty with Prussia regarding prisoners of war negotiated by Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson in 1775, renewed by John Quincy Adams in 1779 and reaffirmed by Henry Clay in 1829, in which there is an express provision that a state of war shall not be made a pretext for suspending the agreement. This treaty declares that each power shall place its war prisoners in wholesome situations, not in dungeons, prisons or prison ships; that they shall not be put in irons; that they shall have room to exercise in the open air, and that they shall be allowed as good food as the rations commonly served to the men of corresponding rank in the army of their captors. That German chefs are good cooks is well known; hence it is not a matter of surprise that from the store of provisions provided them they are able to prepare appetizing menus which convey the idea of luxury to Americans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson 9.—Fourth Quarter, for December 2, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Neh. 4:7-21—Memory Verses, 17, 18—Golden Text Heb. 13:6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is sometimes helpful to glance at the end of a story and consider the successful issue, especially when there are many difficulties to be met along the way. In these days to which we have come and always it is well to live on such words as these: "The kingdom shall be the Lord's," "He shall see of the travail His soul and shall be satisfied" (Obad. 21; Ps. 22:27, 28; Rev. 11:15; Isa. 53:11). It will help us in the lesson of today to keep before us chapter 6:15, 16. "So the wall was finished: . . . they perceived that this work was wrought of our God." Had those who wrought been all skilled workmen they might have given the credit to them, but when the wall was built by merchants and goldsmiths and apothecaries and women they had to look to some power beyond the visible. If we have special talent along any line of service we may get the credit of doing it, but if we are just ordinary folks and God sees fit to accomplish something through us that we seem to be wholly unfitted for, then the glory shall be all his, and that is the way it should always be.

Before we consider the enemies and their confusion let us look at the workers with God and learn from them how to do, for believers are all builders as well as a building (I Cor. 3:9, 10). We must have a mind to work (verse 6) like David, who prepared with all his might because he had set his affection upon the house of his God (I Chron. 29:2, 3). The zeal of these workers is seen in the fact that they were armed while they wrought, they were warriors as well as workers, and they cared little for their own comfort if only they could accomplish their tasks, every one his work (15, 17, 23). Their zeal reminds us of our Lord, of whom it is written, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up" (Ps. 69:9; John 2:17). Being separated far from each other on the wall, they listened as they wrought for the sound of the trumpet which would summon them to Nehemiah, for the trumpeter was by him (vv. 18-20).

Our daily life is conflict as well as service, according to Eph. 6, and we should ever be listening for the sound of the trumpet which shall call us to meet in the air him whose we are and whom we serve (I Thess. 4:16-18). The work is the Lord's, and the battle is his also, and he will work in us both to win and to do and fight for us (v. 20; Phil. 2:13; Ex. 14:14; Josh. 23:10). We have only to dwell with him for his work, and remember his words: "I will work, and who shall hinder it?" "Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed" (I Chron. 4:23; Isa. 43:13; Jer. 51:29). The enemies were very angry and mocked the Jews and conspired to hinder the work (chapter 4:1, 7, 8), but Nehemiah talked with God about it, saying, "Hear, Oh our God, for we are despised!" So they prayed unto God and set a watch against the enemy day and night (vv. 4, 9).

We must expect to be reproached and despised, but we must just tell him as Nehemiah did and remember his own word to us to watch and pray and attend each one to his work while we wait for his call (Mark 13:32-37). The enemy did all in their power to hinder the work and to make the people afraid, but God brought their counsel to naught, reminding us of these words: "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught. He maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations" (v. 15; Ps. 33: 10, 11). The remedy for all fear is to remember the Lord, as Nehemiah told them in verse 14 and as Isaiah said in chapters 41:12, 13; 51:12, 13: "They that war against thee shall be as nothing and as a thing of naught. . . . Who art thou that thou shouldest be afraid of a man . . . and forgettest the Lord thy Maker?"

The worst troubles are not always from outsiders, but often from within the church or the business or the home, and Nehemiah had troubles also from within, for the men of Judah complained of the much rubbish and little strength for the work and said that they were not able to build the wall. They seem to have belonged to the same sort of people as the nobles who put not their necks to the work of the Lord (vv. 10 and 3:5). Then there were those keen men of business who, like some today, made a corner in corn and compelled people to mortgage their lands and houses in order to buy food (vv. 1-6). Nehemiah spoke severely to them and made them cease their oppression, and, while he as their governor should have been cared for by them, he would not accept anything from them, but cared for 150 Jews and rulers at his own table, besides many from outside (vv. 6-19). Chapter 6 tells how his enemies by trickery and deceit and lying tried to do him harm, but the Lord delivered him from them all, giving them insight into their treachery and courage to deal with them as they deserved. It is truly a costly thing to stand out for God in this present evil world.

A magnificent memorial to the women of the Confederacy is to be unveiled this month at Jackson, Miss.

FRENCH CORSET IS STRAIGHT

Corselet Effect Is Dominating Feature of Majority of Frocks—High Collars, Skimpy Skirts Popular.

Paris has accentuated the endeavor to make the human figure look like a lead pencil. The French corsets of this season are built as straight as a medieval cuirass, says a fashion writer in the New York Times.

The corselet effect, in truth, is the dominating feature of the majority of frocks. The First Empire waistline is brought in by many of the designers in order to accentuate the lack of a waist. Even the jackets for street suits drop in straight lines from the shoulders to the hips, unless they carry out the surplice effect.

The extraordinary wide girdles of this season accentuate the Egyptian figure.

It is difficult to know exactly what France has decided upon in the way of a proper neckline. On street suits the collars rise so high that they are called the "cache-nez," or nose coverings. There is the new trench muffler, an apache cravat, and a postillion collar of the eighteenth century for the street; and for the house there are gowns that are buttoned to the chin, with the material "going over the top." Others have the loose handkerchief drapery, the fifteenth century Italian collar, and the conventional high, rolling collar that shows a bit of neck below the chin.

A very few of the new skirts sweep the instep. The rest are frankly short. Street suits have skirts that appear to be simply two breadths of material cut off at the hem to allow the fullest display of the highest boot made.

There is a strong feeling abroad for the elongated skirt in evening gowns and women are insisting that they almost touch the toes in front. They are so narrow that they are easily wrinkled up over the ankles as the wearer moves.

The American league club owners will have a hard problem when they meet in annual session in Chicago this month to decide on a definite policy for the coming season. In all probability a large majority of the big league players will be in the service before spring training time.

Large transfers in real estate are the order of the day in Curwensville now. Properties are continually changing hands and all that seems necessary to make a sale is for someone to set a price on his property. This is due to the scarcity of houses and the prosperity that is with us. Among the sales are the two farms of Secretary of Agriculture C. E. Patton. The farm known as the Etta Way property, where William Mummaw has been residing and farming for Mr. Patton and the farm near the reservoir now occupied by Kline Farwell. Gilbert Wise purchased the first farm and Leather Bros. of Centre County, the other one. The latter expect to have the farm laid off in lots and erect a number of houses which at present is greatly need in Curwensville. Also another transfer of property, O. L. Norris has sold his farm near town to William Bailor, who expects to take possession in the spring. Mr. and Mrs. Norris expect to move to town.

OSCEOLA MILLS

A number of our young people had a splendid social time at the home of John Dunkle on Thursday evening.

Following an illness of twelve days, Howard, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Evans passed from this life at an early hour on Wednesday morning. The deceased had been a patient sufferer for some time with an injured knee, but his death was from pleuro-pneumonia. He had recently passed his 21st birthday. His life was of a high christian character. Surviving him are his parents and eight brothers and one sister all of whom have the sympathy of the community in this the first break in their family. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at two o'clock conducted by his pastor S. T. Lewis.

Lieut Elbridge Brown, Maynard Whitney, George Thomas, Richard Gorman, Thos. McNeish, and Chester Britton were among the jolly soldier boys who were fortunate enough to be allowed to spend their Thanksgiving with the home folk.

Miss Prudia Moore, bookkeeper in the office of the Moshannon Coal Mining Co., is visting her sister in Philadelphia this week.

MORE TEXAS SALOONS CLOSED

Waco, Texas, Nov. 30—McLennan county, with a population of 80,000, and which includes the city of Waco gets on the water wagon at midnight tonight. The changing from "wet" to "dry" is the result of the prohibition victory in the local option election held last month. More than 100 saloons and other retail and wholesale liquor establishments in Waco are forced ou of business.

Begins to look as if Jess Willard will have to either fight, run or quit. Fred Fulton demands a muss with the champion, and Tom Jones, Willard's former manager, is scouring the country for a scrapper to sick on Jess.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30—In accordance with the decision of the Internal Revenue department all stamp taxes embraced in the new war tax law of October 3, 1917, are to become effective tomorrow. This will put the new war tax law into complete operation, except for increased rates on second class mails, which are to become effective on July 1, next.

The University of West Virginia football team must be reckoned as one of the best gridiron outfits of the year, notwithstanding the slip-up in its game with Dartmouth. The W. V. gridders certainly played a stronger game against Washington and Jefferson than did the champion Pittsburg team.

Do Not Speead False Information Again

Call a Newspaper Office And Get Confirmation On Reported Deaths

The pernicious tale bearer is at work again. It must indeed be a pleasant thing to tell somebody that a soldier by the name of Jones has been killed and then infer that it is Jones from your own town Days and nights of worry and distress follow for those who have plenty to be concerned about under ordinary circumstances.

Every citizen may depend upon the word of the War and Navy Department that we will be given news of all casualities as quickly as such news can be rushed through from the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Force.

News of casualties can be reeceived in this country through no other channel than the War and Navy Department and they in turn immediately give it to the press associations. Citizens can depend on the daily papers for authentic news in this direction, and furthermore they can rely upon the fact that if the papers do not know anything about it there has been no casualties.

Yesterday General Pershing reported five deaths among his thousands of men. None of them, however, were Pennsylvanians. Both daily papers of Clearfield now have press association connections and we would urge that no more rumors of deaths among soldiers in France be allowed to spread unless one of the dailies confirms the reports.

Joseph S. Reitz, President of the Clearfield County Dry Federation, issued the following statement this morning:

"We are looking for a rousing meeting of the Dry Federation next Tuesday. Just received a letter from John Royal Harris of Pittsburgh, President of the State Society that he expects to be present and will be glad to address the meeting. A representative of the Anti-Saloon League writes that he will be on the job. Read Miller of Reynoldsville, a field man for the Pennsylvania Dry Federation, phones this morning that he will be in attendance. All signs point to the liviest session the Clearfield County Dry ederation ever held."

Saving the Teeth of Nation's Future Defenders

Many Exemption Boards in Making Up National Army Have Wished School Nurses and Doctors Had Existed 20 Years Ago.

"Good morning! Have you brushed your teeth?"

This salutation is becoming familiar to school children in all parts of the country. In schools where the body is being educated in connection with the mind the child's teeth are considered of first importance.

While the teacher sees that her pupil advances intellectually, the school nurse sees that it develops physically. Her query on entering the classroom is not "Have you studied your lessons?" but "Have you brushed your teeth?"

Medical inspectors have discovered that vast armies of germs inhabit the mouths of school children. They have found that many of the ills which affect the child mentally and retard it in its studies may be traced to defective teeth. Therefore the campaign for clean teeth and teeth that are properly preserved by filling.

"Save the six-year molars and there will be little trouble afterward." This is the slogan of the dentists.

School nurses, therefore, are trying to preserve the molars. In schools where the nurse is in constant attendance the mouth of every child is given frequent examination.

The youngsters pass in review before the nurse with their mouths wide open. If she finds a cavity she makes out a memorandum and later takes the child to a dentist.

Toothbrush drills are part of the curriculum of many of the big city schools. Prizes are offered for those who can vouch for their ownership of toothbrushes and who can prove by the condition of their mouth that they use them. The nurse does everything in her power to persuade the children to spend a few of their pennies on tooth powder.

In one of the big New York schools nurses have combined with dentists to fight pyorrhea, the disease which causes receding gums. In this school intensive work was done recently by oral hygienists of Columbia university, who gave every child's mouth a thorough examination and left it in a hygienic condition.
